

A high profile stand was required to promote the NHS organisation responsible for delivering the National Programme for IT, using existing equipment on a space-only site of 36m<sup>2</sup>. A central meeting area under a high level canopy was provided for meeting delegates. Full height illuminated displays dominated the two front corners of the stand. Presentations were made using a plasma screen located on the wall to the store area. The installation of a platform floor added to its presence at the exhibition and allowed securing of the stand structure and under-floor wiring.

Manktelow Ltd produced the stand designs, graphic panels, supplied all necessary audio-visual equipment, organised all on-site services, and provided all transport and installation of equipment. We also provide fully insured storage facilities for the equipment at our warehouse.

Following the RCN Congress exhibition the equipment has been re-used in a variety of configurations on stands of smaller sizes at a range of other venues around the country.