

A space only 7m x 5m site open on three sides required the building of a backwall. The full-height graphic panels were supported on a flexible structure built around an existing literature dispenser/storage unit.

Existing units housed three computers each with internet connection and a plasma screen was placed to attract passing visitors.

The custom-built reception counter was produced by Manktelow.

